Read the short passages and answer the questions.

I opened the box and gasped.

"Wow!" I whispered. "A gold medal with my name on it!"

I couldn't believe I had won first place in the science fair. I remembered all the time I had spent building my volcano model, testing it over and over.

"I knew you could do it!" my mom said, hugging me.

I smiled and held the medal tightly in my hand. This was a moment I would never forget.

Emma loved baking cookies with her grandmother.

"Can I add the chocolate chips now?" Emma asked, holding the bag with both hands.

"Go ahead, sweetie," her grandmother replied with a smile.

Emma stirred the dough carefully, making sure the chips were spread evenly. Once the cookies were in the oven, she sat by the window and waited. The warm smell drifted through the house, making her stomach growl.

We ran down the hill as fast as we could, laughing the whole way.

"Don't let your kite crash!" I shouted to Mia, holding onto my string tightly.

"I won't!" she laughed, chasing after hers as it dipped and rose again.

The sky was full of color as our kites danced in the wind. I felt like we could fly right along with them. It was the perfect afternoon for kite flying, and I never wanted it to end.
