The Lost Kite

Caleb and his sister, Nora, ran across the grassy park on a windy afternoon. Caleb held tight to the string of his bright red kite as it soared high above the trees.

"Hold on tight, Caleb!" Nora shouted, pointing up at the sky.

Suddenly, a powerful gust of wind blew through the park. The string slipped right out of Caleb's hands! The red kite fluttered in the air and got stuck in the branches of a tall maple tree. Caleb sighed and slumped his shoulders, thinking his kite was lost forever.

Nora smiled and patted his arm. "Don't worry, Caleb. Look!" She pointed to a long fallen branch resting nearby. Together, they used the branch to gently lift the kite free. Caleb beamed with joy as his red kite caught the wind once again.

The Cardboard Castle

Rain fell outside my window on Saturday morning. I was sad because I had nothing to do. Then Dad brought a big cardboard box into the room. "Look what came in the mail today!" he said with a big smile.

"Can we make a castle?" I asked, jumping up. Dad gave me scissors and blue tape. I cut two small square windows on the sides. Dad helped me cut out a big front door.

I went inside and poked my head out through the top. "Welcome to my giant castle!" I called out to my little brother, Eli.

Eli laughed and crawled in right after me with his stuffed dragon. I knew right then that this rainy day was going to be the best day ever!
